What is your volunteer role at CVIM?

I make first contact with people inquiring about our services. By phone, I do an initial screening to see if the person may apply to be a patient. I detail the documents they will need and give directions to CVIM, or I refer them to other clinics or agencies.

What brought you to volunteer at CVIM?

My next door neighbor, Doris Leigh, invited me to volunteer as I had previously volunteered at a Free Clinic in Northern Virginia.

How does volunteering at CVIM make you feel?

I have mixed feelings about my work. On one hand I feel sad to hear what troubles people have and on the other hand, I am glad I can help them find the services they need, either with CVIM or with a sister agency.

To interest your friends in volunteering at CVIM, what would you say?

I tell them it is a first class organization filled with talented and compassionate volunteers and staff.

Have you recruited any other volunteers to work at CVIM?

I have not brought in any new volunteers, but I have trained new ones and I have fundraised for the CVIM Dinner at Hershey's Mill to raise money for Judy's Cookie Jar.

Margie wears many hats:

I have always worked in business until my last job at a Public Garden, just for fun! My family and I lived overseas for 12 years, and I still enjoy trips abroad.

When Margie is not at CVIM, she likes to do lots of things:

Reading is my passion and I am enjoying finding old books for my library. I also volunteer at Channel 20, the Cable TV station at Hershey's Mill, as copy editor of the monthly magazine and as Treasurer on the Board. I also love to travel, having been to Singapore, Malaysia, Japan, and Scotland this past year.
